Lawrence Rosenborough, a singer-songwriter born and raised in Tulsa, Oklahoma, discovered his passion for music at an early age. With over 25 years of singing experience and 20 years of songwriting under his belt, Lawrence has become a versatile artist, showcasing his talents across multiple genres. Starting as a background singer, he swiftly ascended to become the lead vocalist of a nationally recognized gospel group before venturing into his solo career. Throughout his musical journey, Lawrence has collaborated with various national recording artists, demonstrating his versatility and musical prowess. His performances have graced numerous events in the Tulsa community, with recent highlights including Legacy Fest. In addition to his solo work, Lawrence has lent his backing vocals to acclaimed Oklahoma artists such as Bertrand Bailey, Sarah Nicole, Amber Owens, and Michael Fields, among others.

In 2024, Lawrence released his debut EP titled “Human Relations,” a collection of five songs that delve into psychological and sociological perspectives on relationships, communication, and social interactions. Drawing from personal experiences, each track resonates with universal themes, offering listeners a glimpse into the complexities of human connection. With “Human Relations,” Lawrence continues to inspire and impact audiences with his heartfelt music and profound storytelling.
